

On track

GIDDY-UP shopaholics, the spring racing season is here. The Melbourne Cup will be run on Tuesday, so it's time to start planning your racing wardrobe.

Instead of the classical black and white, why not opt for something fun, funky and colourful that you know you'll be able to wear again?

From multicoloured dresses to retro A-line minis and metallic headpieces, anything goes when you are trackside this year.

Here's a glimpse of the latest styles from Pinka Ponka (formerly a Vanilla boutique), Muse and Platinum. These boutiques, along with George Gross, Harry Who, David Jones mens and womenswear, Chilli Mint Fashion, Montaigo Boutique, Vanilla boutique and Shine on Sea will be show their fashions at the Advertiser Sunday Mail Foundation Melbourne Cup lunch.

If you want to combine fashion with a flutter on the races, this is the perfect event for you.

Held at Adelaide Oval on Tuesday, November 6, guests will be entertained by the stars of the musical Miss Saigon and Adelaide band the Flaming Sambucas.

TAB facilities will be available and guests will watch the races on the big screen.

The luncheon, compered by Channel 7's Graeme Goodings, is sponsored by Qantas, TAB, Step Rd Wines, Coopers Brewery, Lexus of Adelaide, MinnieMac, David Jones and Flowers Fresh Central Florist. For bookings, phone Elise on 8206 2530 during business hours.

BEAUTY SPOT

❑ Sick of your stunning stilettos getting stuck in the mud and being dirty on race day? Why not try Heel Angels – transparent strips which wrap around your stiletto to stop them from getting dirty or stained? A pack of six strips costs $9.95. Visit www.heelangels.com

❑ The latest trend might be metallics, but these brands have gone to the next level – using real 24-carat gold, which is said to help stimulate lymphatic drainage and blood circulation and remove toxins.

Om Veda Gold Day Cream, $53.10, 1300 662 383, Guerlain L'Or, $142, (02) 9695 4800.
